What We Have Learned

DPW Director Brandon Herget

What We Have Learned

- The White River Innovation District is more than an economic development project - its significance goes beyond infrastructure and the adjacent community.
- The Henry Street Bridge is architecturally significant but Henry Street itself is historically significant given the impact to the former Greenlawn Cemetery.
- A new approach to archeology is necessary to meet the community's expectation of that historical significance.
- This approach will both address the erasure of the City's past and will change the City's skyline.

Infrastructure Update

To the Common Council and Board of Aldermen:

Gentlemen:—I am in need of more ground for burying purposes in Greenlawn Cemetery. The city can buy lots for $15 to $20 each, and I suggest that a few be purchased as soon as possible.

I have been offered the north half of lot 188, as recorded in book "AA," page 71, owned by George Lowe, for $7.50, and recommend that the same be purchased at once.

Respectfully, ROBERT TURNER, City Sexton.

Henry Street Proposed Right of Way (ROW)
Prepared for the City of Indianapolis, May 9, 2024

Bird's Eye View of Indianapolis, 1871, Indiana Historical Society

Common Council Proceedings, November 6, 1871, p. 782

To the Mayor, Common Council and Board of Aldermen:

1. Gentlemen:—Since the last meeting of the Council, the case of Ellen Smith, et al., vs. The City, Flanner & Hommown, and Fielding Houston, has been tried before Judge Taylor and a jury, and resulted in a verdict in favor of the city, but in favor of the plaintiffs against the other defendants, and fixed the damages at $200.00.

The action was for trespass, the defendants having buried the bodies of five paupers on the lot of plaintiffs, in Greenlawn Cemetery, over the bodies of their dead ancestors. The Sexton and undertakers claim that they were not aware that other bodies had been buried on the lot in question; and while I believe this to be true in this case, I am convinced from facts learned by me in the preparation and trial of this case, that no more County burials should occur in this cemetery. I would suggest that you instruct the Sexton not to dig any more graves for the burial of the poor, unless the county undertakers first furnish proofs that the ground selected is not private property.

Common Council Proceedings, July 24, 1883 p. 1093-1094

We were informed by the Assistant Sexton, that they were now, and had for some time, been using for burial purposes, ground that, to their certain knowledge, had been used for the same purpose at least twice before; and that in excavating a grave, it was almost always the case that at least two, and frequently three sets of buried remains would be met with; and that in all cases where the coffins were not comparatively new, they simply spread the different sets of remains over the bottom of the grave, and placed the new coffin upon top of them. The city has no grounds within the enclosure, that have not been buried in one or more times.

- Morrison Greathouse was born in 1838 In Kentucky and died of pneumonia in Indianapolis on Jan. 29, 1877.
- He was married to America Greathouse.
- He is the great-great-grandfather of Cassius Clay Jr, known as Muhammed Ali, one of the world's greatest boxers.
- One of his sons was Archie Greathouse, (1859-1936), who became one of Indianapolis's largest Black property owners.
- Many of the businesses along historic Indiana Avenue were owned by Greathouse. Archie also used his own resources to oppose the building of Crispus Attucks because he did not believe in segregated schools.

- He was as widely known and highly esteemed as any African in the state.

   He was a barber by trade but soon became a very important member of the black community.

Chaney Lively

Chaney Lively was born in 1795 in Kentucky. She died in 1857 in Indianapolis at the age of 62. Not sure, but believed to be buried in Greenlawn Cemetery.

Alexander Ralston came to Indianapolis in the early summer of 1821. A lifelong bachelor with no known family, he came with a clerk and a housekeeper described as "a mulatto woman named Chaney Lively." Chaney was 21 years old when she arrived in the city and a free woman of color—the first to call Indianapolis home.

BORN A SLAVE

It's not clear where or when, but we think Ralston originally purchased Chaney as a slave. Most likely, he bought her in Louisville, KY. a major slave trading hub at the time he lived there in the early 1800s.

Chaney Lively (cont'd)

Although slavery was outlawed by the new state constitution, that didn't stop settlers moving north from bringing their slaves with them when they came.

The term "free person of color" was highly symbolic, and there were plenty of ways for whites to evade the law. Governor of the Indiana Territory and future President William Henry Harrison, for example, bought slaves in Kentucky and imported them as indentured servants.

The relationship between Ralston and Chaney began as slavery, but by the time they arrived in Indianapolis, they lived and worked side-by-side in a manner that led others in the community to regard her as an important and respected member of his household. Ralston worked on his survey of Indianapolis throughout the summer of 1821. When the platted lots went for sale in October, he bought two lots on the first day: one for him and one expressly for Chaney.

CHANEY LIVELY MARRIES JOHN G. BRITTON

We have more documentation of her than almost any other African-American woman in antebellum Indianapolis. This is remarkable, considering that she lived when few black women owned property in Indiana.

John G. Britton marries Chaney Lively (married in Indiana May 9, 1836)

A local barber and community leader with a four-year-old daughter, Eliza Jane Britton (also buried in Greenlawn).

Most of what I am sharing today, I knew nothing about before doing this research.

These people are truly amazing to achieve what they did when they were not welcomed here.

How we got here

- Changing thoughts of respect by community since inception
- State Laws and city ordinances did not protect site
- Disinterring graves methodology then compared to now
- Building on site over the decades
- City is working with 2 laws Federal (Section 106) and State (IC 14-21)

So, we are here. Now we can do better!

Legal Protection of Cemeteries

IC 14-21-1-13.5

Authorizes the Department of Natural Resources – Division of Historic Preservation and Archaeology to conduct a survey program of every cemetery and burial ground in Indiana

- Was the Greenlawn complex of cemeteries on this list?
- What does that mean?

IC 14-21-1-27

A person finding human remains must notify DHPA within two days. Reburial will in in compliance with state laws.

IC 14-21-1-28

Makes it illegal to disturb the ground for the purpose of discovering or removing artifacts, burial objects, grave markers, or human remains without a plan with the DHPA.

IC 14-21-1-29

If you find an artifact (object made before December 31, 1870), notification of our department must be within two days.

IC 14-21-3

Before a person buys property containing a cemetery, the current owner must record the deed in the recorder's office with CEMETERY in bold, capital letters on the bottom of the deed

IC 23-14-57 & IC 14-21-27

Describes how cemeteries and human remains are disinterred

To see the entire law, go to http://iga.in.gov/ put in the code and the law will be displayed
